JOHN G. PRICE

Republican Candidate For Nomination For Attorney General.

John G. Price of Columbus, O., candidate for the Republican nomination for attorney general, comes before the voters of Ohio at the primaries Aug. 13 with a splendid record of public, patriotic and civic service.

As a lawyer he is well and favor ably known in Columbus and else where throughout the state, and is conceded to be well fitted for the of fice he seeks, owing to the experi ence he has had in the office of the prosecuting attorney of Franklin county and as special counsel for two years in the office of the attorney general.

Mr. Price, a tireless worker in pub lic affairs, has spoken in practically every county in the state in connec tion with the various patriotic move ments during the present crisis. He was actively engaged in the war chest campaign in Columbus, O., and is the originator of the now famous slogan "1 to 31," which has been so extensively used throughout the nation. He is also a member of the board of state charities.

Born in the city of Canton, Stark county, and graduating from the Canton High school, he entered the local mail service, where he remained until 1899, when he was appointed by President McKinley to the postoffice department at Washington, where he was able to attend night school, and in 1905 graduated from the George town university law school.

Mr. Price is married and has two children.

There are some people in this country who seem afraid that if they win the war they will be at a loss to know what to do with it.

PRESIDENT WILSON AND SECRETARY M'ADOO ASK RELIEF FOR PUBLIC UTILITIES

They Maintain That Public Service Corporations Must Be Given Adequate Rates Because They Are Essential to the War.

Washington, July 28 .- One thousand and seven (1,007) corporations furnishing the public with light, heat or traction, whose rates had been fixed on peace-time costs for a term of years, were given advances by city councils or state commissions during the first five months of this year. These acts, prompted by patriotism, doubtless, because efficient public utilities are necessary to the winning of the war, showed moral heroism, for the positions of councilmen and commissioners are political, and when they are fair with "Big Business," they instantly are assailed by the demagogues who have played for popularity by attacking the aggregations of capital which make public service possible; by the Socialists and rights in property and by the envious and greedy class, who hate everyone who has saved money so as to be able to buy stock in a public utility-the classes who charge couneilmen with "selling out to the interests" if they allow a public utility a living rate.

Who Are the Public?

The public is you and me and the other fellow. The public is always fair, even liberal, when it knows all of the facts. It is always suspicious, and properly so, when asked to approve transactions concerning which it lacks facts necessary to the formation of an intelligent opinion.

That the national government has officially taken cognizance of the situation, which if not relieved, soon will wreck a large majority of the light. heat, traction and power companies is shown by instructions issued by the president in February.

The secretary of the treasury wrote, in part, as follows:

Dear Mr. President:

It is obvious that every part of our industrial and economic life should be maintained at its maximum strength in order that each may contribute in the fullest measure to the vigorous prosecution of the war. The transportation of workers to and from our vital in-dustries and the health and comfort of our citizens are dependent upon them, and the necessary power to drive many of our war industries and many other industries essential to the war is produced by pressing the conviction that the vital part which the public utilities companies represent in the life and war-making energy of the nation ought to receive fair and just recognition by state and local authoristics.

I hope you may feel justified in ex-

After giving consideration to the facts submitted by the secretary, the president replied:

The White House, February 19.

Mr. Dear Mr. Secretary:

I have examined with care the memoranda and letter which you transmitted to me with your letter

I shall be glad to have you communicate with the local authorities whenever the information in your passession suggestion in your passession suggestion. formation in your possession sug-gests that such a course is desirable and in the national interests.

(Signed) WOODROW WILSON. The comptroller of the currency, John Skelton Williams, in his annual report, makes a strong plea, as do the President and Secretary McAdoo, for relief of the utilities. Mr. Williams points out that the maximum efficiency, which the president says is essential, is not possible "under existing conditions," and that the utilities must have higher rates to make it possible.

Those companies that are going direct to the people with their cases on the ground that they will get a square deal from an informed public, are cutting the ground from under the chronic kicker, agitator or self-seeking demagog. The situation is crucial or the head of the nation would not take it up as he has done.

The federal government evidently intends to support public authorities in advancing utility rates to a point which will make effective service possible in war time.

The man who has vision will be for finishing the job while we are at it. It is the only way to save the babies of today from the slaughter that is taking the blood of our boys now.

However, the people who do not pay any attention to the meatless days, wheatless days and the like are not becoming any more popular with the better class of people who do.

MISS SUMAYEH ATTIYEH.

NE of the most interesting attractions to appear at the Chautauqua this summer is Miss Sumayeh Attiyeh, a beautiful young Syrian girl, who will speak, out of a wealth of experience, regarding conditions in that little known country. Miss Attiyeh's father was a government official in Turkey, and she had the right of entry into places usually forbidden to the sightseer. She knows of many interesting things, and she tells them in an unusually charming manner.

Miss Attiyeh came to America a number of years ago to be educated as a Miss Attiyeh came to America a number of years ago to be educated as a Medical Missionary and to return to take up her work in Syria with her native people. Her father died shortly after her coming to America, and she was compelled to find something to do in this country in order to help maintain the family of children which he left.

She found jobs in Chicago for several of her brothers and sisters, and finally received the place where through their united efforts it was found.

finally reached the place where, through their united efforts, it was found that the family could be reunited. The mother had already notified her of her intention to come to America, when a cablegram announced the sudden and untimely death of her surviving parent. Two children were left in Syria.

The young woman who is to speak is the little mother of her flock. She is tolling on hopeful that in happier days the family can finally be united in America. She loves America and the American people, and her message is a partinent and timely one to the people in the land of her adoption.
